Profile

I am a highly motivated and hardworking individual. I am a University Graduate for BSc (Hons) Computer Games Programming. During my studies, I am very keen to gain some working experience and build up my skill set and advance further into programming languages.

I enjoy working both individually and as part of a team and I find it easy to get along with all types of people. I have an aptitude when it comes to using technology and find it easy to understand and get to grips with various devices and programs. This is a big interest of mine both within my studies and my free time.

Hobbies & Interest

I am a big technology and gaming fanatic and would love to travel to Japan one day to see all the latest technology and games they have there before we get them here. I like watching films and going to the cinema with friends in my free time as much as I can.

Although not a massive sports fan myself, I am always willing to take part in sporting events and I do enjoy adventure training. I was part of a youth group for couple years when I was slightly younger and on trips away. I have had the opportunity to do rock climbing, kayaking and other adventure activities which I found very enjoyable.
